Some beginning information about the run:

- You should be able to complete the first run that you do, as long as you follow the notes exactly. Misreading them can lead to runs that cannot complete. Don't try to do something else because you think it will also work, unless you've tried it before. Information about WHY we do these things are not present in these notes, as they are outside the scope of this document, but if you ask someone will definitely be able to tell you.

Some information about how these notes are laid out:

- There are a few acronyms used throughout the run.
 - SD: Skip Dialogue. During some cutscenes, some of the dialogue is skippable. As soon as the text finishes appearing on the screen, you can hit Confirm to cause it to disappear. This will stop the Voice Over lines from completing, causing the cutscene to progress faster. As a result, you can mash during this to progress faster.
 - CS: Cutscene. In game rendered cutscene. Can't do anything about it, just take a break. Usually they will have the approximate time that the cutscenes take, so you can plan your breaks better. These are timed for PS2.
 - FMV: Full Motion Video. Pre-rendered cutscene. Can't do anything about it (usually), just take a break. Usually they will have the approximate time that the cutscenes take, so you can plan your breaks better. These are timed for PS2.
 - Skippable FMV: Skippable Full Motion Video. Pre-rendered cutscene, but you can skip these if you are on PC. They still have times, because these are not skippable on PS2.
 - Touch the Save Sphere: Touching Save Spheres will full heal you. Touch the save sphere, and then cancel out.
- Read each page as such: Left column, then right column, then the next page. There are some instances Read the columns left column first, then right column, then next page. There are some instances where there will be an instruction box that takes up both columns - in this case, do whatever is above the instruction box first (left column, then right column), then do whatever is below the instruction box the same way (left column, then right column)
- Each bullet point is their own item. Do what it says there before going to the next one.
- There are instances where you have to get an item, or overdrive, etc before progressing. If the notes say to do so... Do So. These notes don't contain many backup strats.

Some important considerations for the run:

Encounter Count:

One of the mechanics present in the game is that Aeons get more powerful the more encounters have happened in the game. Starting at 60 encounters and every 30 encounters thereafter the base power of the Aeons increases. In this route we repeatedly force fights against Lord Ochu in Kilika and Flee to increase the encounter count in the fastest way possible. This route forces 140 Lord Ochu Encounters. On PC this route saves time vs the existing route which only forces 50 Lord Ochu Encounters, however on PS2 it is slower due to the increased load times of encounters.

Tidus' Overdrive:

By the late game we need to have Tidus learn his Slice and Dice overdrive ability which becomes available after using 10 total overdrives throughout the run. To that end it is a good idea to try to fit in a Spiral Cut (Tidus' starting overdrive) wherever possible. The route has 3 mandatory Spiral Cut uses on Sinspawn Ammes, Sinspawn Echuilles and Seymour. Others Good Locations to fit in a Spiral Cut are:

- Garuda (Luca)
- Extractor
- Spherimorph (First Turn)
- Defender X

Lulu's Overdrive:

In the late game we utilise Lulu's Fury Overdrive in combination with Rikku's Trio of 9999 Mix to deal large damage to enemies. This overdrive works by rotating the right thumbstick with the number of hits increaseing with more rotations. There are 3 Bosses in the game that have mandatory 7 hit requirements on Fury to be able to defeat the Boss. Some people find this difficult to achieve consistently so you should practice this overdrive before your first run and be confident in getting at least 7 hits. The following resources may also be of help:

This fight aims to use Valefor to deal the bulk of the damage with energy blast. After the first energy blast Gui will Attack and follow up with Demi. Then you need to do 3-4 Thunders with Valefor to get Gui to 4218HP or below to kill with Energy Blast. Energy Blast has a damage range of 4218 - 4763 with an average of 4491, so it is possible to kill Gui if its HP is between these values but not guaranteed.

Gui will always follow up an Attack with Demi but can follow up Demi with either an Attack or Demi. Depending on which attacks Gui uses and whether his Attacks miss or not you may only be able to fit in 3 Thunders when a 4th is needed to get Gui below 4218 HP. If Valefor has < 329 HP and Gui just used Demi then Valefor is at risk of dying so you should shield until Gui uses a normal Attack and then use Thunder. After this Thunder use Energy Blast. It is possible that at this point Gui is not dead, however 3 Thunders should be sufficient 80% of the time.

5. walk left past 2 screens, SD. Potion/Cure Tidus if he got injured. Walk right and use the 2nd option to ride ze shoopuf, SD.

In this fight you need to apply Slow to extractor with Stunning Steel. You can check after each of Tidus' Attacks if Slow has been applied by looking at the turn order. If Slow has been applied Tidus and Wakka will get more than one turn each after some boss turns.

On Extractor's 3rd turn it will rise. Each time extractor falls back down it will always use Aqua shooter on it's next turn and then it will randomly choose between Aqua Shooter and Rise on subsequent turns. You need to deal 500 damage to Extractor once it has risen to force it back down and this is only possible with 4 Attacks, 2 from each of Wakka and Tidus (If you have lightning steel you only need 3 turns, 1 Wakka attack and 2 Tidus Attacks). You need to make sure you always have enough turns following a turn in which Extractor can rise, so you will need to pay attention to the turn order and use Switch Weapon, where necessary, to fix the turn order to make the fight safe.

Side Note: If you have Wakka's overdrive available and are confident in your ability to get 2/3 lightning elements this deals 500 damage on its own. This can help you out if slow isn't landing or can allow you to play less cautiously with the turn order whilst available since reels + Tidus attack will always do 500 damage. Similarly Tidus' overdrive will deal at least 355 damage which means you can get away with 3 turns to make Extractor fall whilst this is available.

The key to this fight is reducing Evrae's health until it is in the window [11460-11967]. Once Evrae is in the damage window you need to perform the killing combo blow but it needs to be well timed. You should try to get Evrae into this window before the second Poison Breath. If you fail to get Evrae into this window before the second Poison Breath it is best to tank another Poison Breath and defend for an extra cycle. Once you are confident with the fight you can judge whether you have the time to get her in the window after the Poison Breath.

There is a rare outcome where Rikku's Second Mix crits Evrae (9000+ Damage). Evrae will likely have overshoot the damage window and in rare cases Evrae may use haste here. If Evrae hastes then recovery is almost impossible and it is very likely game over. If Evrae is below the damage window do not damage her until next poison breath, Hi-Potion Auron and Phoenix Down Rikku if hit by Evrae.
